1 Introduction

1.1 Background

The General Teaching Council for Scotland (GTC Scotland) is dedicated to maintaining and enhancing standards of teaching and teacher education in Scotland. We seek to ensure that programmes of Initial Teacher Education (ITE) are professionally appropriate, demanding and prepare students for registration as a primary or secondary teacher. In the ever-evolving landscape of Scottish education it is also our belief that ITE programmes should help to prepare creative and dedicated teachers who are able to work and develop professionally in a world of change, diversity and accountability, and who are committed to equal opportunities for all.

Our powers in relation to teacher education institutions (“relevant institutions”) originally derived from the Teaching Council (Scotland) Act 1965. The Act placed a duty upon us to monitor the quality of programmes of ITE and authorised the establishment of groups of persons to visit the institutions for that purpose. The Act also empowered us to make recommendations to the institutions and outlined the procedure for use in the event of conflict arising between GTC Scotland and the institution.

The Teachers (Education, Training and Recommendation for Registration) (Scotland) Regulations 1993 required that, with certain prescribed exceptions, instruction in the Theory, Methods and Practice of teaching must be given by teachers registered with GTC Scotland. While these Regulations are now revoked, this specific requirement is maintained under Schedule 5 and article 29 of the Public Services Reform (General Teaching Council for Scotland) Order 2011 (the 2011 Order). Article 29 of the 2011 Order states that:

29 (1) It is for the GTC Scotland to determine what constitutes a recognised teaching qualification for individuals seeking registration as a school teacher.

29 (2) A determination may make such provision about the education and training required to attain such a qualification as the GTC Scotland thinks fit.

The Policy Statement: Accreditation of Programmes of Initial Teacher Education in Scotland, and the Guidelines for Initial Teacher Education Programmes in Scotland (the Guidelines) set out our policy on the content, nature and duration of programmes leading to teaching qualifications (TQs) for the primary and secondary sectors. We ensure that these requirements are met through accrediting all programmes of Initial Teacher Education (ITE) in Scotland.

1.2 Equal Opportunities/Disability Discrimination

In the ever-evolving landscape of Scottish education, it is GTC Scotland’s belief that programmes of ITE need to prepare student teachers to become competent, thoughtful, reflective and innovative practitioners, who are committed to providing high quality learning for every learner. We consider that this includes prioritising and ensuring that all programmes of ITE embed the principles of equality, diversity and inclusion.

We are committed to the general equality duty under the Equality Act 2010 in all of our functions. This includes having a due regard to the need to:

- ❖ eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation and other conduct that is prohibited by the Equality Act 2010;
- ❖ advance equality of opportunity between people who share a relevant protected characteristic and those who do not, including those with specific learning differences; and
- ❖ foster good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and those who do not.

As part of the accreditation of ITE programmes, we encourage ITE course providers to demonstrate their commitment to ensuring that all ITE courses and programmes embrace and promote diversity, challenge discrimination and promote the equal opportunity requirements, as laid down by law, and that all opportunities reflect the diversity of Scotland’s population. In addition, we will look for clarification as to how course providers will empower students to adopt these principles.

2 Accreditation of Programmes of Initial Teacher Education in Scotland

We define accreditation as the process of ascertaining the professional acceptability of a programme of ITE leading to a teaching qualification. Accreditation applies to programmes and not to ITE institutions; accreditation will therefore take place programme by programme. It is the programme operated by the ITE institution which is accredited, not the institution itself. We think it right and consonant with our role that each programme should be carefully evaluated on an individual basis and from a professional point of view.

When a programme has been accredited by us, either unconditionally or after all conditions have been met, the programme is entitled to run for a period of up to six years, with an interim evaluation in year 3 highlighting any developments and/or enhancements in the content, nature, duration or structure of the programme. The ITE institution would require to have the programme re-accredited before the end of the six-year period or earlier if the programme is subject to substantial revision.

3 Evaluation Framework

3.1 Statutory Requirements

The ITE institution will assess the programme proposal for academic rigour and degree-worthiness. Policy Statement: Accreditation of Programmes of Initial Teacher Education in Scotland, August 2022 and The Guidelines for Initial Teacher Education Programmes in Scotland, August 2022 requires that all programmes are subjected to external scrutiny as a means of ensuring the maintenance of acceptable academic standards. The process must be completed before the accreditation event.

The framework provided below highlights key features of the accreditation requirements and a space for indicating how and where each requirement is met in the institution’s accreditation submission.
